

CEDARVILLE UNIVERSITY, a nationally recognized leader in campus networking, is a comprehensive, primarily undergraduate, Baptist university of arts, sciences, and professional programs with an enrollment of 3,000. It combines a balanced liberal arts focus with an evangelical, non-charismatic, theological position. Faculty, who must be born-again Christians, must agree with our doctrinal statement, Community Covenant, and General Work Place Standards. In addition to teaching excellence, expectations include Biblical integration of faith/learning, student advising, scholarly pursuits, service activities, collegiality, and church involvement.

The Department of Business Administration (DBA) is pleased to announce a search for the initial appointment to the endowed Berry Family Chair in Free Enterprise. The DBA is an ACBSP accredited business department of fifteen faculty members and 360 students offering majors in accounting, finance, global economics and international business, information systems, management, and marketing. Responsibilities commence in August 2008.

The purpose of the Chair in Free Enterprise shall be to promote the principles of global free market economics in the context of biblical perspectives on economics and economic issues. The mission of the Chair shall be to engage in activities that facilitate the spread of and reinforce the foundation of free enterprise principles to students and other university constituents who will influence their culture, organizations, and professions through service anchored in biblical truth.

The successful endowed Chair candidate will be expected to develop upper division economics course(s) within the Department of Business Administration, work with university faculty to revise a core curriculum course to include free enterprise principles, explore the feasibility of proposing an Economics major at Cedarville University with special emphasis on free enterprise and governmental policy analysis, and develop a proposal for a Center for Free Enterprise at Cedarville University of which the Chair would assume directorship.

As Director of the Center for Free Enterprise the Chair will: conduct and/or collaborate on research leading to publication and presentation, develop conferences and seminars, assist in finding additional funds needed to support the Center, recruit Center Fellows, explore the possibility of inviting visiting scholars to the Center, assist in developing expertise among faculty and students in free market responses to various business related issues, establish an advisory council that meets annually, and attract world class free enterprise academics and practitioners to the Center.

The successful endowed Chair candidate will be required to have an earned Ph.D. in economics or related field; a demonstrated record of scholarship and involvement with professional academic organizations; five years of successful college-level teaching or related experience; strong interpersonal and communication skills.

Interested applicants should send letter of application and curriculum vitae, to Dr. Stanley Baczek, Dean, School of Natural and Applied Sciences, or his assistant, Mrs. Karen Calvert at 937-766-3253 or e-mail calvertk@cedarville.edu. Applications accepted until position is filled.
