

GEORGE FOX SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Tenure Track Position in Accounting

George Fox University is seeking applications for a full-time (nine-month) tenure track accounting faculty position beginning fall 2012.

The George Fox School of Business invites applications from established and promising accounting scholars/practitioners who are interested in joining a business school that emphasizes excellence in teaching. The new tenure track position will begin Aug. 15, 2012. The position will be filled by an energetic individual who will join a School of Business teaching faculty who share a vision to develop leaders for all segments of society that combine Christian values with solid business expertise.

The ideal candidate will have: doctoral qualifications (PhD in accounting; DBA with accounting emphasis; J.D. with MBA or MAcct), practical experience, documented strong teaching skills, and an established or potentially successful publication record. Individuals who are currently engaged in doctoral studies also will be considered. In addition to a strong accounting background, coursework and/or professional experience in the areas of financial and managerial accounting will be helpful. Teaching load will include some combination of undergraduate and MBA courses.

The George Fox School of Business is home to more than 500 undergraduate, MBA and doctoral students. A strong student focus, a major emphasis on applied knowledge and an expectation that faculty members actively integrate their Christian faith with their business discipline characterize the School of Business.

Founded in Newberg, Ore., in 1891, George Fox University has grown rapidly in the last two decades - both in academic reputation and size. The university is ranked by Forbes as one of the top 20 Christian colleges in the nation. It is classified as a first-tier regional university by U.S. News & World Report.

A nationally recognized Christian university of the arts, sciences, and professional studies, George Fox University enrolls more than 3,500 graduate and undergraduate students. U.S. News & World Report ranks the university among the top 40 in the nation in percentage of undergraduate students who study abroad. Through our Act Six multicultural leadership scholarship program, China

Studies Initiative, and aggressive recruitment efforts of employees and students of color, George Fox seeks to become a more racially and ethnically diverse community. We believe that such goals are in keeping with our mission as a Christ-centered community. Candidates should value a climate that reflects the diversity of God's kingdom and encourages engaging in global concerns and connecting culturally.

National recognition also has come from the John Templeton Foundation, which selected George Fox as one of the 100 in its Honor Roll of Character-Building Colleges. The university now offers more than 40 undergraduate majors and graduate programs in psychology, counseling, education, business and ministry.

The undergraduate business program is one of the largest programs at the George Fox University Newberg campus. The MBA programs consist of an 11-month, full-time program at the Newberg campus, evening programs for working professionals at the Portland and Boise centers, and a doctor of business administration with management and marketing concentrations

George Fox University seeks faculty members who are enthusiastic about the university's mission "to prepare students spiritually, academically and professionally to think with clarity, act with integrity, and serve with passion." Professors teach all truth as God's truth, integrating all fields of learning around the person and work of Jesus Christ. Applicants must have a personal commitment to Jesus Christ and express their Christian testimony by participating in a local church. In addition, professors agree to live in agreement with the university lifestyle statement and affirm the theological commitments expressed in the university's Statement of Faith. Individuals who would fit this profile are encouraged to apply.

Salary and rank will be commensurate with education and professional experience. The contract year begins Aug. 15, 2012. Interested candidates should submit a letter of interest, professional vita and faculty application to:
