Hope International University is a regionally accredited private Christian university enrolling approximately 1700 students representing more than 35 states and 40 countries.

Hope was founded in 1928 as Pacific Bible Seminary, when it began its long-standing tradition of empowering students to serve the Church and impact the world for Christ. The University provides students with a leadership and ethics focused education in service-based professions through undergraduate and graduate degree programs in business, education, ministry, music, psychology and counseling, human development and other social sciences. In addition, certificate and degree completion programs for working adults are offered.

As a private Christian university, Hope is committed to the integration of faith, service and learning. This dedication is reflected in the university's mission statement, core values and statement of belief, the guiding lights for every activity, class and relationship on campus. Hope's main campus is located in Orange County, in the city of Fullerton, California. Hope also has an educational center strategically located in Corona, California to serve our adult student population. In addition, our online degree programs make it possible for individuals to take courses from anywhere in the world!
